Staunton has a sensation in the way of a first-class ghost, who holds his sway at the porter's lodge of the Western Lunatic Asylum. The Vindicator, in its account of the ghost, says:

"On the 6th of February, Junius Slemeker, the gardner of the asylum, aged 55 years, died. He was from Richmond, and his wife, while awaiting her return to that city with her children, remained in the residence they had occupied for several years. She stayed about ten days and then removed to Eastern Virginia. After she left the windows were fastened down and the doors securely locked. About five weeks ago, a day or two after Mrs. Slemeker left, Mr. Jewett, who is the watchman of the porter's lodge on alternate nights, heard obout 9:30 p. m., while on duty, a violent pulling of the door of the gardener's room, as if some one on the inside was trying to get out. It was so violent and so long continued that he took the key of the room, which is kept in the watchman's room, went across the carriage way, and, anlocking the door, entered and made a thorough search. He found the windows all securely fastened down, and no living thing. He said nothing the next night Mr. Wright, who was on duty keep them in order. It is a POSITIVE Remedy for as watchman, had the same experience, and on comparing notes, the two watchmen the body-for Torpid Liver-Headaches-Jaunfound that the noises had impressed each one alike as to the character of the sounds. The report became general, and a number of persons connected with the asyspot and heard the same unaccounted-for Womb. noises. A few nights ago, as two gentlemen were going down the main building to satisfy their curiosity, they saw from the arch, midway between the asylum and the lodge, a light in the sleeping-room, but on reaching the lodge were told that the door of the gardner's room was locked, and nobody had cure. It is a Positive Remedy.

R. H. WARNER & CO., Rochester, N. Y.

"The unexplained noises have created a good deal of curious interest in and out of the asylum, especially from their long continuance after every mode of accounting for them has been closely examined into. The whole building, which is not a large one, has been rigidly searched-cellars and all; the doors and windows are securely fasened, and if they were not there is no loose wood or iron in the rooms with which the noises could be made by a person who had entered. The fact that there have been on the ground in the last five weeks (the duration of the phenomena) on various occasions some thirty different persons, and all have heard the same manifestations at about the same time of the night, bars the explanation of auricular illusion, and has added to the curiosity which may now be said to be at fever heat.

LOUD-VOICED TELEPHONES.-A dispatch from New York says: An improvement has been made in the telephone, by which the fund. Read carefully the list of Prizes for the full tones of the human voice may be transmitted. Mr. C. E. Chinnock, the electrician the northwest corner of Kiog and Patrick streets, of the Metropolitan Telephone Company of this city, said yesterday: "Two weeks ago I went to Boston to consult with the Bell Telephone Company, from which all other telephone companies in the country obtain their rights. While there I was invited into the office of Mr. Jacques, the chief electrician of the company. Mr. Jacques said he had something to show me that would perhaps surprise me. He gave me a seat in his private room. About twenty feet away from me was an ordinary looking telephone, just like those in use all over this city.-A moment after Mr. Jacques had closed person say in an ordinary conversational tone: "Good morning, Mr. Chinnock, how do you like Boston?" I looked around in amazement, and said to Mr. Jaques: "Have you got a speaking tube here?" No; that is the telephone, said the electrician. At first I thought it was some practical joke they were playing on me, but after a little explanation, I was convinced that it was the result of a wonderful discovery in electrical science. By using the carbon in a pulverized form instead of in the ties to suit, eithe fresh or salted by experienced shape of a hard button, and by using a current four times as strong as before, the telephone is made to give forth as loud and articulate sounds as those of the human voice. anteed. I believe there is no doubt that, after this improvement has been put into general use, stood and will continue to stand No. 1 in the the call bell now attached to all the telephones can be dispensed with, because the voice from the telephone can be heard by any one near enough to hear the bell. While I was still in the room a voice came from the telephone calling for 'Miss Taylor,' a lady employed in an adjoining room some forty feet away from the instrument, and yet Miss Taylor at once left her desk and went to answer the call."

A SHIP'S Log.-The speed of vessels is approximately determined by the use of the log and log-line. The log is a triangular or of an inch thick, so balanced by means of a plate of lead as to swim perpendicularly in the water, with about two-thirds of it under the water. The log-line is a small cord, one end of which, divided into three, so that the wood hangs from the cord as a scale-pan from a balance beam, is fastened to the log, St. The log, thus poised, keeps its place in the water, while the line is unwound from the reel as the ship moves through the logs of the water, and the length of line unwound in line is ship. The log, thus poised, keeps its place in the water, while the line is unwound from the reel as the ship moves through the logs of the water, and the length of line unwound in given time and the length of line unwound in the logs. 2 00 water, and the length of line unwound in a 1 00 given time gives the rate of the ship's sailto Garing. This is calculated by knots made on The Gazette office is connected with the Telephone Exchange. The first knot is placed about five fathoms from the log, to allow the latter to get clear of the ship before the reckoning commences. This is called the stray-line.

at thorough search. He found the windows all securely fastened down, and no living creature in the apartment. He made a similar search of the up-stairs sleeping-room with the same result. After coming out and relocking the door he heard the same demonstrations again, accompanied by the sound of breaking sticks and the clinking of iron.
